

Sociology & Anthropology

Bachelor of Arts, Anthropology

1ST YEAR

2ND YEAR

3RD YEAR

4TH OR FINAL YEAR

WHERE COULD I GO AFTER GRADUATION?

COURSES TO TAKE

- AN112 Cultural Anthropology
- AN113 Linguistic Anthro.
- WU101, EN 101, and MA112 (or MA116)
- Gen Ed Classes (15 credits)

Take advantage of Skillsshops on time management, study skills, and financial literacy offered through the Center for Student Success.

- AN114 Intro to Archaeology
- AN116 Biological Anthro.
- Foreign Language 101 and 102
- Gen Ed Classes (18 credits)

Consider a minor or double major that aligns with your career goals.

- AN362 Methods of Social Research (Fall)
- AN324 History and Theory of Anthropology (Spring)
- AN elective
- EN300
- Gen Ed classes (9 credits)
- Electives (9 credits)

Decide on minor or double major

- AN490 Applied Anthropology
- AN Electives (9 credits)
- Electives (16 credits)

This is a good time to finish up courses for your minor or a double major.

RELEVANT EXPERIENCE

- Meet with your advisor to discuss career goals
- Explore the WU Career Services Website
- Explore the American Anthropological Association Careers website
- Begin collecting examples of your best work for your portfolio and resume

- Review job ads to determine skill-set and experiences needed
- Attend the WU Career Fair
- Connect with department alumni

- Talk to mentors who could serve as strong references
- Research graduate programs and/or careers of interest
- Create a resume or CV
- If you're considering graduate school, take the GRE or LSAT exams the summer after your third year

- Finalize resume and CV
- Create portfolio website to showcase skills to future employers
- Draft cover letters for jobs and ask peers and faculty to give feedback
- Apply for graduate programs and/or jobs

BUILD YOUR NETWORK

- Participate in Anthropology Day in February and other departmental events on campus to get to know faculty and your peers
- Visit departmental tutors and/or attend faculty office hours
- Join clubs on campus related to your interests

- Attend museums and cultural and campus events
- Get to know your peers in your major and minor courses
- Apply for scholarships and funding for WTE or Study Abroad

- Attend a professional conference or Apeiron
- Explore internship or summer fieldwork opportunities
- Join a professional network like the National Association for Student Anthropologists or Professional Archaeologists of Kansas

- Complete an internship or fieldwork experience
- Present research at a conference like Apeiron
- Join LinkedIn and connect with others who work in anthropological careers

GLOBAL THINKING

- Attend WUmester, international, and other local diversity and inclusion events
- Investigate community-engaged learning opportunities with LinC
- Consider becoming a "WU Buddy" with an international student

- Explore study abroad opportunities and funding support
- Get involved in your community and volunteer with local organizations that align with your interests

- Consider a Washburn Transformational Experience (WTE) for Community and Civic Engagement, International Education (study abroad), Leadership, or Scholarly / Creative
- Consider taking a leadership role in a club or community organization

- Complete a WTE
- Share your experiences with others by writing or talking about them.
- Continue to partner with local communities

- Job opportunities: federal, state, local government; international organizations; public and private sector; museums; cultural resources management; human rights teams; social policy and services; business and marketing

- Internships and gap year programs
- Advanced education

Anthropology fosters critical analysis, broad perspectives, and interpersonal skills applicable to a variety of professions

VISIT
www.washburn.edu
FOR MORE
INFORMATION