

Guidelines for dealing with campus disruptions

---

When there is probable cause to suspect that the activities of students, faculty or staff will reach a level of disruption that will create potential hazards to the safety of individuals, damage University property or disrupt the operations of the University, or when a potentially disruptive or hazardous activity is spontaneous, the aforementioned offices should be contacted in the following order:

- University Police
- Student Life Office (for student disruptions)
- Office of President (for staff/faculty disruptions)
- University Relations
- University Counsel

Leadership and responsibility

Individuals with the responsibility for providing leadership and direction during potential hazardous or disruptive campus activities:

- University Police shall receive their ongoing direction from the Emergency Executive and President.
- University Counsel may be called upon to provide legal advice concerning the planned response to any disruptive activities.